From two-time Carnegie Medal winner Patrick Ness comes an enthralling and provocative new novel chronicling the life — or perhaps afterlife — of a teen trapped in a crumbling, abandoned world. A boy named Seth drowns, desperate and alone in his final moments, losing his life as the pounding sea claims him. But then he wakes. He is naked, thirsty, starving. But alive. How is that possible? He remembers dying, his bones breaking, his skull dashed upon the rocks. So how is he here? And where is this place? It looks like the suburban English town where he lived as a child, before an unthinkable tragedy happened and his family moved to America. But the neighborhood around his old house is overgrown, covered in dust, and completely abandoned. What's going on? And why is it that whenever he closes his eyes, he falls prey to vivid, agonizing memories that seem more real than the world around him? Seth begins a search for answers, hoping that he might not be alone, that this might not be the hell he fears it to be, that there might be more than just this. . . .

A city shakes in fear. Agonizing as it tears itself apart trying to find the most recent and brutal serial killer. No one is safe. Anyone is next. Enter Viktor Slade. He's not your average detective. He's not a detective at all. He never was. He was a "cop." More of a solider. His specialty is absolute destruction and urban warfare. He's not a smooth operator. He's a self-loathing, narcissistic, angry, drug addled, man-whore who knows how to kill and accidentally stay alive. He's not a scalpel. He's not a broadsword. He's a gore encrusted Warhammer. He's the salivating, bloodthirsty, bastard offspring of a one-night stand between lady justice and Ares the God of War. And he's got his daddy's eyes. Witness Slade's pain. His hatred for crime, rivaled only by his hatred for himself. Watch as a killer tightens the piano wire around a city's bare neck as it claws for dear life. Strap in for...Degenerate.
