The fate of inventors and patentees today is far worse than it was for Robert Kearns—the inventor of the intermittent windshield wiper whose story was portrayed in the movie, A Flash of Genius. Mr. Kearns battled automotive infringers for years on end. His wife divorced him. He became estranged from his children. He was placed in a mental hospital. Eventually he prevailed. But Mr. Kearns “only” had to battle infringers. Today, an inventor’s battles to uphold and enforce his patent would include resistance from infringers. The Patent Trial and Appeal Board. District courts. The Federal Circuit. The Supreme Court. State attorneys general. Congress. The executive branch. Even if a

In Wireless Wars: China's Dangerous Domination of 5G and How We're Fighting Back, author Jon Pelson explains how America invented cellular technology, taught China how to make the gear, and then handed them the market. Pelson shares never-before-told stories from the executives and scientists who built the industry and describes how China undercut and destroyed competing equipment makers, freeing themselves to export their nation's network gear—and their surveillance state. He also reveals China's successful program to purchase the support of the world's leading political, business, and military figures in their effort
